ALUMINUM COOKING WARE.

Good Cooking Made Easy.

In January when we contracted with the makers of Aluminum Cooking Utensils for 1000 pieces, it was thought by some of our people that we were simply crazy.

In less than a week we were telegraphing orders to the factory to be sent by express. The sales have exceeded our wildest dreams

A lady from Orange county wrote for a catalog, said she'd heard Aluminum Ware so highly spoken of. We received an order from her for $15.00 worth.

Everybody likes it because every woman who has ever tried it finds that cooking is much quicker, more thorough, requires less fuel and less time, never wears out, and never rusts.

People who use Aluminum Ware, say they wouldn't take five times the price paid for their cooking utensils if they could not get any more of them.

It's been the greatest seller and the best satisfier ever produced in torday Judge Edmund Waddill resumed the term interrupted by the illness and death of a relative. The petit jury, adjourned at the time of the interruption, reported yesterday, and the court took up the retrial of the case of S. H. Cottrell and Son vs. the Smokeless Fuel Company, growing out of the failure of the company to deliver coal to the plaintiff at a price agreed upon in a contract between the parties. At the time a strike prevailed in the coal regions. At a former trial of the case a verdlet for the plaintiff for more than three thousand dollars was returned, but the court set aside the verdict. The trial of the case had more than fairly begun at the time of adjournment of court yesterday, and will likely engage the attention of that tribunal all of to-day and possibly to-morrow.

A number of Important reports will be submitted, amongst them one of the special committee appointed to use its influence in securing suitable accommodations for the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the present Federal building; one from the Committee on Manufactures, in reference to the Chesapeake and Ohio Railrond shops, and one is expected from the Special Committee on Annexation.

is expected from the Special Committee on Annexation.

This last question has reached a critical state. The Chamber, in resolutions printed on the next sheet, earnestly petitioned the City Council to adopt a liberal plan for extending the corporate limits of Richmond, being induced to send this petition for what were deemed most weightly considerations. The mass meeting called under the auspices of the Chamber, to give full and untrammeted expression to public sentiment upon the subject, was a most impressive one, and with but few dissenting voices was heartly in favor of the same policy. But that course has not been pursued. It will, therefore, be necessary for the Chamber to put forth renewed and well considered, but immediate, afforts in behalf of a wise, but progressive, plan for Greater Richmond.

Every member of the Chamber is urgently requested to attend promptly, and lend his counsel and influence in furthering the important work which the Chamber has in hand.

Very cordially.

Mrs. Montague Visits Manchester and Is Cordially Rcceived.

MAY BUILD A NEW CHURCH

Cowardin Avenue House Inadequate for Attendance-Three-Cornered Race for House.

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, No. 1102 Hull Street. There is strong talk of the erection of new church by the Cowardin Avenue Christian congregation.

Rev. Mr. Woodward, pastor of this church, recently stated to a number of fellow-Disciples pastors that so large were his congregations a more capacious house of worship had become a necessity. It was a question now before the church whether the present house would be enlarged or a building more in keeping with the demands, erected.

Mr. Woodward's pastorate has been successful to an unusual degree.

Funeral of Mrs. Pierce.

The funeral of Mrs. Thomas A. Pierce, who died at the residence of her son-in-law, Dr. E. T. Rucker, Tuesday, will take place from the house, No. 1207 Decaute Street, at 4 of clock this afternoon, Friends of the family, and invited to attend.

Mrs. Montague Attended.

The silver tea, given at the home of Colonel A. G. Evans, on West Ninth Street, last night, for the benefit of the Home for Needy Confederate Women, was a complete success, the only regret being on account of the enforced absence of Governor Montague, who expected to attend. The Governor had to go to Charlottesville yesterday afternoon, to attend the exercises incident to the induction of Dr. Alderman into office as president of the University. University, rs. Attorney-General Comments on Northerner's Reference to New Constitution.

THE HAMPTON INSTITUTE CHAMBER MEANS BUSINESS

Anonymous Writer Makes False Impression Regarding Treatment of Negro School.

An anonymous correspondent of the Nev ork Times, in a communication to that paper in its issue of April 9th, entitled Hampton Institute Finances," nandicap imposed by the new Constitution of Virginia, refers very sarcastically to the Christianity of the people of Virginia and accuses them of placing a hardship upon the Hampton Institute. The writer who signs himself "Presbuteros, Troy, N. Y., says in his communication in part:

'In commenting upon the same, it should be known that that very deficit, which be known that that very deficit, which at one time threatened to put the industrial department out of business, was due to the new State Constitution, which was adopted by the Commonwealth of Virginia. Besides disfranchising, indiscriminately, colored electors, right and left, the Constitutional Convention of the Commonwealth of the State of Virginia prohibited the sale of the products of the industrial department of Hampton Institute, which was the source of considerable revenue.

tute, which was the source of considerable revenue.

"Now, Hampton Institute cannot cane a chair, put a new spoke in a wagon wheel, mend a shoe, sharpen a crowbar, or pickaxe, paint a door panel, or sew a button on a pair of breeches, or clean and press a coat, for any white or colored citizen of the town of Hampton and community and receive one cent for the same. This is one of the features of the new Virginia Constitution, which the Christians of Virginia have adopted as being the best that can be hidd.

"Many a small merchant, or one-horse ginia have adopted as being the best that can be had.

"Many a small merchant, or one-horse farmer, used to have such work done by student-mechanics of the Hampton industrial department. This, you see, enabled the student-mechanics to earn a few paltry pennies for themselves, which were credited to their account by the school, and at a price which was satisfactory to the impoverished farmer, oysterman, or dray driver.

"While the Christian people of the big Mother of Presidents States say to us, as Christian brethren, that they believe in making the colored folk self-supporting, they have, by constitutional measure, prohibited Hampton Institute from being the agent in applying this principle. Hence, there seems to be a hyphenated phobia against the material advancement of the institute in its magnificent work."

Attorney-General Replies.
Attorney General William A. Anderson, a member of the Constitutional Convention, and of the State Board of Education, commenting on this letter, stated yesterday afternoon, that the clause in the Constitution, to which reference is had, prescribed that such institutions in order to be exempted from State taxation, are forbidden to do work or sell their goods or wares in the community. In the case of the Hampton Institute, the Constitution has been construed to mean that pupils from the institute must not work or sell their wares in Hampton, Phoebus and Elizabeth City county, but they may do so in Newport News or more Phoebus and Elizabeth City county, but they may do so in Nowport News or more remote points. He stated further that the provision was equality applicable to the Miller Manual Labor School, an in-institution for whites, in Albemarie county, and to all other schools of the kind other than State institutions.

The reason for the insertion in the Constitution of this provision was that stustitution of this provision was that stu-dents of such manual and technical dents of such manual and technical schools who had no expense for living were taking the bread out of the mouths of the mechanics and artisans in similar lines in the communities, in which such schools are located. In Brunswick county where there is such a school pupils were shooing hories at such a low rate that black-smiths dependent upon their labor, for a livelihood could not live. The pupils of such schools can do work outside of their Immediate vicinage, but not in the committy. If they do the institutions with nity. If they do the institutions with which they are connected are made subject to taxation. It appears from this statement that the It appears from this statement that the law is general, and is not a discrimination as the New Yorker would make it appear, against Hampiton Institute, nor against the negro. The statement is about as far from true as that this State has been disfranchising indiscriminately the negro electors. The negro electors, says the attorney general, have the same conditions to meet that the whites have. conditions to meet that the whites have; no more and no less.

ANNEXATION IS

Advocates of Greater Richmond Say Fight Is in Fine Shape.

Commercial Organization to Take Action-Ordinance Committee.

The fight for extending the corporate limits of Richmond is in better shape than it has ever been, according to those who are contending for a greater city, and they expect to be able to push the matter to a successful issue in the course of time.

The Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular quarterly meeting at 8:15 o'clock to-night, and the question of annexation will be the chief one discussed. The Chamber has taken strong ground for the broadening of the city's limits, but has never advocated any particular lines. The body stands for greater Richmond on business principles, and will cooperate in every way with the Progress accomplish this end.

There will be no called meeting of the Ordinance Committee to consider the matter, which was recommitted on Tuesday night. Chairman Davis Bottom said yesterday that it would come up at the next regular session, which will be held on Friday evening. April 2st.

Mr. Blair's Views.

Mr. Blair's Views.

Mr. Blair is a member of the Ordinance Committee, and being something of a statistician, he states that the body will, by a majority of one, report a plan enlarging upon the Mills lines. He has probably polled his colleagues, and may "speak by the card." But the real fight for annexation is just now fairly, on, and it is the deliberate judgment of wise men in and out of the Council that the sending of the whole matter back to the committee will result in the bringing in of a plan upon which all the contending patrictic forces may be reconciled. It is believed that what are regarded as extremists on both sides will yield something to one another, and that harmony will yet prevail on the subject.

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to-night the question of annexation will be fully discussed.

FORBES ROBERTSON

Great English Actor Appears Here in Shakespeare's Masterpiece-Ben Hur.

An event to which playgoers have been Roking forward will be Mr. Forbos Robertson in "Hamiot." at the Academy to-night. Critics on both sides of the Atlantic have given Mr. Robertson unstituted praise. Mr. Robertson has made his own acting version, which involves both omissions and transpositions, but does not, it is olaimed affect injuriously the structure or the character of the play. Mr. Robertson is an interesting personality. He belongs to that group of English "actor-managers" who have done much for the drama in England in the way of introducing interesting noveities and sumptuous revivals of the classics. Mr. Robertson has just finished a most successful engagement in New York, at the Knickerbocker Theatre, where he played for four weeks. He will bring his English company of players. A special feature will be the overture and incidental "Hamlet" music by Tschalkewsky.

Coming of Ben Hur.

"Ben Hur" which is to fill an engagement of a week at the Academy, starting Monday, April 24th, is a stupendous spectacle in every way the auditor despectacle in every way the auditor despectacle in every way the auditor despectacle in every scene, and moving from the heginning to the end with a deep human and a profound mystical interest. Thrilling as is the galley scene, electrifying as is the carlot race—the mechanism of which typified the very highest reach of theatified invention—and beautiful as are the pagan rites in the Grove of Daphne, there is nothing that so appeals to the imagination as the final tableaux in which the Presence of the Mossiah is Indicated. All this is an uplifting display of the truest art, and by it "Hen Hur" repudintes the statement made by many that the theatre was designed only to amuse and not to instruct.

In performing the ceremony of lighting the perpetual lamp, Mr, Julius Straus delivered an carnest and instructive address, in which he explained the significance of the perpetual lamp and bespoke for the congregation progress and perpetual light.

In presenting the keys of "The House of God" to the president of the congregation, Mr. Henry S, Hutzler made a fine address. He admonished the congregation that his mere statement that the space within the four walls of the building was the "House of God" did not make it so.
